A Collab That Cares

It’s back and better than ever. This year’s O, The Oprah Magazine Collection for Talbots is not only cute but supercomfortable. To show it off, we enlisted four multitasking women: Food Network star Katie Lee, fitness guru Angela Manuel-Davis, actor Katy Mixon, and singer-actor Amber Riley. The playful, relaxed spirit of the five-piece line (designed to encourage self-care) and the charitable initiative behind it—a portion of the net proceeds go to Dress for Success—made our models feel excited and honored to take part. “There is the most incredible power in women helping women,” said Mixon. “The photo shoot was pure joy!”

This marks the fourth year O has teamed with Talbots to create a line of fabulous clothing with a purpose.

CLOTHING FOR A CAUSE

Attention, shoppers: Our annual capsule collection with Talbots debuts February 19. In ever-versatile black and white, and soft, move-with-you fabrics, this year's line is all about the casual life. "These five easy pieces are meant to be layered, and you can also add a pop of color to the mix," says O creative director Adam Glassman. As if that weren't appealing enough, 30 percent of the net proceeds go to Dress for Success, and Talbots will match any monetary donations up to $250,000. Here, two of our celebrity ambassadors model the doing-good duds.
